AQUA DE MAGNOLIA.—The prettiest thing, the "sweetest thing," and the most of it for the least money. It over comes the odor of perspiration; softens and adds delicacy to the skin; is a delightful perfume; allays headache and inflammation, and is a necessary companion in the sick-room, in the nursery, and upon the toilet sideboard. It can be obtained everywhere at one dollar per bottle.

B. T.—1860.—X.—The amount of Plantation Bitters sold in one year is something startling. They would fill Broadway six feet high, from the Park to 4th street.—Drake's manufactory is one of the institutions of N. York. It is said that Drake painted all the rocks in the eastern States with his cabalistic "B.T.—1860.—X," and then got the old granny legislators to pass a law "preventing disfiguring the face of nature," which gives him a monopoly We do not know how this is, but we do know the Plantation Bitters sell as no other article ever did. They are used by all classes of the community, and are death on Dyspepsia—certain. They are very invigorating when languid and weak, and a great appetizer.

"In lifting the kettle from the fire I scalded myself very severely—one hand almost to a crisp. The torture was unbearable. * * * The Mexican Mustang Liniment relieved the pain almost immediately. It heals rapidly, and left very little scar.

This is merely a sample of what the Mustang Liniment will do. It is invaluable in all cases of wounds, swellings, sprains, cuts, bruises, spavins, etc., either upon man or beast.

All who value a beautiful head of hair, and its preservation from premature baldness and turning gray, will not fail to use Lyon's celebrated Kathairon. It makes the hair rich, soft and glossy, eradicates dandruff, and causes the hair to grow with luxuriant beauty. It is sold everywhere. E. THOMAS LYON, Chemist, N. Y.

WHAT DID IT?—A young lady, returning to her country home after a sojourn of a few months in New York, was hardly recognized by her friends. In place of a rustic, fishbed face, she had a soft, ruby complexion, of almost marble smoothness; and instead of 22, she really appeared but 17. She told them plainly she used Hagan's Magnolia Balm, and would not be without it. Any lady can improve her personal appearance very much by using this article. It can be ordered of any Druggist for only 50 cents.

Heinstreet's inimitable Hair Coloring has been steadily growing in favor for over twenty years. It acts upon the absorbents at the roots of the hair, and changes it to its original color by degrees. All instantaneous dyes deaden and injure the hair. Heimstreet's is not a dye, but is certain in its results, promotes its growth, and is a beautiful Hair Dressing. Price 50 cents and $1,00. Sold by all dealers.

LYON'S EXTRACT OF PURE JAMAICA GINGER—for Indigestion, Nausea, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Cholera Morbus, &c., where a warming, genial stimulant is required. Its careful preparation and entire purity make it a cheap and reliable article for culinary purposes. Sold everywhere at 50 cents per bottle.

THIS POPULAR REMEDY is fast coming into use, for the fact that I cure, free of charge, all these complaints whenever there is an opportunity to do so. As soon as it is applied it almost miraculously kills the pain. I do not ask you to buy before you are certain of its efficiency. I do not propose to cure every disease—only a class named by my directions. My liniment operates on chemical and electric principles, and is, therefore applicable, to the cure or natural restorative of all organic derangement arising from an improper circulation of the nerve vital fluids.

Prof. J. H. McEntyre's INDIAN COMPOUND acts directly on the absorbents, reducing glandular and other swellings in incredible short time, without any possible danger from its use under any possible circumstances.

This is an internal and external medicine—composed of roots, herbs and barks, such as our forefathers used.—There is a bountiful supply on earth to cure all complaints if we only know what they were.

This has been a great study with the Medical Faculty for many years, to find out the kinds best adapted to the above complaints—how to put them together, and what proportions to use.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

TO THE LADIES.—Do you really intend to cease wearing the beautiful styles now so prevalent, or dress less elegantly, because the rebel Jeff. Davis, was captured in Fashionable Female attire? One moment's calm reflection will surely serve to change your rash resolve. The angels had too much good sense to lay aside their pure chaste robes of white, because they had for a time served to hide the deformities of that Prince of Rebels, the Devil. Can you err in following the example of Angels? Then having made up your minds that you will continue to dress tastefully regardless of rebel acts, do not forget to call at the store of the subscribers, who will be happy at all times to furnish you with such articles of dress as you may desire. Urge your fathers, husbands, brothers, neighbors and children to visit the same store. They can here be suited in good articles of Boots, Shoes, Clothing Material, Hats, Caps, Queensware and a general assortment of Groceries, on as reasonable terms as at any House in town. Store on Southeast corner of the Diamond, Huntingdon, Pa.

THE PLAIN LOVER.

I was a coquette. Many a lover's heart I had lacerated by refusing his offer of marriage, after I had lured him on to a declaration. My last victim's name was James Frazer. He was a tall, awkward, homely, ungainly man, but his heart was as steel. I respected him highly, and felt pained when I witnessed his anguish at my rejection of him. But the fact was, I had myself fallen in love with Captain Elliott, who had been unremitting in his devotion to me.

Mr. Jas. Frazer warned me against Elliot, but I charged him with jealousy and took his warning as an insult.

A few days afterwards Elliot and I were engaged, and my dream of romantic love seemed to be in a fair way of realization. I had a week of happiness. Many have not so much in a lifetime. Many awake from the bright short dream to find themselves in a lifelong darkness, and bondage from which there is no escape. Thank God I was not so miserable as they!

My mother was a widow in good circumstances, but had very bad health.

She was also of an easy, listless, credulous nature—hating trouble, and willing to take things just as they happen to present themselves. She therefore made no inquiries about Captain Elliot—but fondly believed that inasmuch as he was a Captain he must necessarily be a man of honor also, especially as he had served in the Crimea and India and won medals. His regiment was quartered in our neighborhood, and he had the reputation of being one of the wealthiest, as he was certainly the handsomest officer in it.

I remember well the day we became engaged. He was on duty, but had managed to ride over to our house in his uniform, and while we were walking in the garden he made the tender avowal. I referred him to 'mamma;' he hastened to her—returning in a few minutes, and led me into her presence to receive the assurance that the maternal consent had been readily given.

My dear mother hated trouble, and she moreover loved me tenderly, so that she was well pleased to find a husband presenting himself in a form and manner apparently so eligible for her beloved and only daughter.

Well, a week passed quite delightfully as I have said; and at the expiration of this there might have been seen an equestrian party winding through our old Devonshire woods and quiet country roads. Elliot and I led the cavalcade. I rode my own beautiful brown Bess. Captain Elliot was mounted on a handsome black horse that had been sent from London.—Following us was a bevy of merry girls and their cavaliers; and among them was tall, awkward and silent Jas. Frazer. His presence had marred all the pleasure of my ride, and I was glad to be in advance of them all that I might not see him.

And as we rode on through the woods, and I listened, well pleased, to the low but animated words of the gallant Elliot, who wished himself a knight and me a fair layde of the olden time that he might go forth to do battle and compel all men to recognize the claims of his peerless love. Very eloquent he spoke of the inspiration of love, of the brave deeds and perilous exploits it had prompted, wishing again and again that he might proclaim and maintain his love before the world. It pleased me to listen to this and to believe it sincere, though I surely had no wish to put my lover to such a test.

A shot suddenly rang through the woods and a wounded bird, darting past, fluttered and fell at the feet of brown Bess. With a bound and a spring that nearly unseated me, she was off.

Struggling to retain my seat, I had no power to check her, and even as she flew, the fear and madness of the moment grew upon her. I could only cling breathlessly to the mane and bridle, and wonder helplessly where this mad gallop was to end. She swerved from a passing wagon, and turned into a path that led to the river. In the sudden movement the reins had been torn from my hands and I could not regain them. I clung to the mane and closed my eyes, that I might not behold the fate that awaited me. How sweet was life in those precious moments that I thought my last. How all its affections, its last crowning love rose up before me. I thought of the pang that would rend Elliot's heart as he saw me lying, mangled and dead; and the thought would come if he were pursuing and trying to save me; even, as he had said, at the risk of life and limb.

I remembered no more. I felt a sudden shock, fearful rushing through the air, and knew no more until days afterward, I woke to a faint, weak semblance of life in my chamber at home. I never saw Captain Elliot again. The last words I ever heard from his lips were those of a knightly daring. The last action of his life in connection with mine, was to follow in the train of frightened youths who rode after me, to contemplate the disaster from afar, and as soon as he saw me lifted from the shallow bed of the river, into which I had been thrown when my frightened horse stopped suddenly on its banks, to ride hastily off. That evening he sent to make inquiries and learning that I was severely, but it was hoped not fatally, injured, he thenceforth contented himself with such tidings of my condition and improvement as could be gained from mere rumor.

At last it was known that I would never recover entirely from the effects of my injury, and that very day Captain Elliott departed suddenly from the neighborhood. He made no attempt to see me, nor sent me any farewell. When I was once more abroad, beginning, though with much unalloyed bitterness, to learn the lesson of patience and resignation that awaited me, I received a letter from him, in which he merely said that he presumed my own judgment had taught me, that in my altered circumstances, our engagement must come to an end, but to satisfy his own sense of honor (his honor!) he wrote to say while entertaining the highest respect for me he desired a formal renunciation of my claim. Writing on the bottom of this letter, "Let it be as you wish," I returned it to him at once, and thus ended my brief dream of a romantic wedding.

I heard ere this of Elliot's cowardly, unmanly conduct on that day, but now I first bethought me to inquire who had rescued me from that imminent death. And I learned that Jas. Frazer, his arm already broken by the jerk with which brown Bess tore away from him as he caught at her bridle, had ridden after me, and been the first to lift me from the water. Many times daily he made inquiries concerning me; his had been the hand that sent the rare flowers that had decked my room; his were lips that breathed words of comfort and hope to my poor mother; his were the books that I read during the days of convalescence; and his, now, the arm that supported me, as slowly and painfully I paced the garden walks.

I have been his wife for many a year. I have forgotten that he is not handsome—or rather he is beautiful to me, because I see his grand and loving spirit shining through his plain features and animating his awkward figure. I have long since laid aside, as utterly untenable, my theory that beautiful spirits dwell only in lovely bodies. It may be a providential compensation that, in denying physical perfection, the soul is not drawrfed or marred by petty vanity or love of the world's praise.

☞A soldier came home from the war with an arm so badly wounded that the surgeon insisted that amputation was the only thing that could be thought of. But the soldier resisted, and was nursed by the girl he loved, whom he married. She gave to him, or his wounded arm, all her thoughts and care, and he recovered. In due time, however, she gave birth to a child, and this child had one developed arm, but the other was a stump, similar to the one which the poor wife's mind was impressed with at the time the surgeons were talking of cutting off her husband's. Amputation could not have produced a more beautiful stump, and what is more, the scar of the bullet hole so visible on the father's arm, was as visible on the child's arm at the base of the stump as if really inflicted by a ball.

☞The way words are divided when set to music sometimes produces a rather ludicrous effect. A stranger was once surprised on hearing a congregation, mostly of women crying out:

"Oh for a man!
Oh for a man!
Oh for a man—sion in the skies."

While on another occasion a choir sang to the best of their ability:

"We'll catch the flee!
We'll catch the flee!
We'll catch the flee—ting hours!

☞A Dutchman's definition of square party politics: "Anypody wot votes for somepody wot not gets elected mit a gennyvine convention ish not no Democrat, py cot."

Why is copper the most harmless of metals? Because it's always in-a-cent (innocent.)

"Working for bare life," is defined to be making clothes for a new baby.

Driving off the Fog.

On a late trip of the steamer Express from Nashville, she was detained several hours by fog. Captain McComas, anxious to get along, did not stop his boat, but kept her cautiously moving forward, having both eyes wide open for an obstacle. Passing the stern of the boat to make an observation, he was met by a passenger, who said to him—

"Captain, why don't your drive off the fog?"

"Just the thing I should like to have you tell me how to do."

"Come down into the cabin, and I'll tell you how an old German friend of mine once did it."

In a few minutes afterwards they were comfortably seated in the cabin when the passenger commenced by saying.

"I shall expect you to believe it, and of course try my experiment."

"In the rich valley of the Mohawk, there is a quiet little village called Sparker's Basin. Not many years ago and before there was such a thing as a railroad in the State of New York, the veritable Mr. Sparker, the patriarch and founder of Sparker's Basin, was keeping a tavern a mile or so from the village, upon the thoroughfare known as Johnstown road. Sparker's as it is generally called, was in early times the great rendezvous for the Mohawk farmers while journeying to Albany with their wheat, and of the Jefferson and Lewis county drovers: Now and then a New York merchant on his trip to the northern settlements was to be seen before the great wood fire in Sparker's tavern. This class of travelers were held in much respect by old Sparker, and the honest Dutch farmers on the river. One of this class accosted the old man on the porch one foggy morning with——

"Mr. Sparker, do you have much of this sort of weather down here in the valley?"

"Oh, yees, put we ton't mind it, Mr. Stewart, I has a vay of triving it off. "Ish no matter at tish fog."

"How's that, Mr. Sparker, I should like to know the process of driving off a fog."

"Well, I will tell you. I takes a tram and goes out and feeds te pigs, and if te fog don't go off putty soon, I takes another dram, and den I goes out and fodders te cattle, and if te fog aint gone py tis time I takes another dram, and den I goes out and chops wood like dunder, and if te fog tont go py tis time, I takes an oder tram, and so on Mr. Stewart, I keeps a doin' till te fog all goes away."

"Well, upon my word, Mr. Sparker, this is a novel mode of getting clear of a fog. How many drams did you ever take of a morning before you succeeded in driving off the fog?"

"Let me see, about two years ago, I tink I had to take about twenty drams but it was a tam foggy morning."

☞A Detriot paper is sponsor for the following: "About a year ago one of our business men visited New York city, and while there ordered a half dozen cartes de visite of himself, which he distributed among his friends in that place. A few days ago he was surprised to find one of these "counter feit resemblances" in possession of the family cook. An investigation into the matter disclosed the fact that she had received from a fortune teller in New York city, who advertised to forward a correct likeness of any young lady's future husband, all for the sum of fifty cents, which amount the cook had remitted, according to the advertisement, and received her employer's likeness in return.

☞In Bergium and Holland linen is prepared beautifully, because the washer women use refined borax, instead of soda, as a washing powder One large handful of borax is used to every ten gallons of boiling water, and the saving in soap is said to be one-half. For laces and cambrics an extra quantity is used. Borax does not injure the linen, and it softens the hardest water. A teaspoonful of borax added to any ordinary sized kettle of hard water, in which it is allowed to boil, will effectually soften the water.

☞In the famine districts in India, the natives are reduced to feed on roots and mango stones, which they grind into a kind of flour. This miserable sustenance is wholly insufficient to keep a large number of them from starving, and the fearful spectacle is presented of numerous corpses lying on the highways. They remain unburied, and, probably as a consequence cholera has broken out, and carrying off large numbers of persons. In their utter distress mothers are offering their children for sale in order to buy bread.

They that seek wisdom, will be wise.

A Father-in-Law in Spite of Himself.

The London correspondent of the New Orleans Delta writes the following to that paper:

A good sell is related of a wealthy banker here, who is very good-natured, but inclined to be a trifle fast in his views of life. He had a favorite clerk, a young man of about twenty-one and remarkably handsome, modest and highly intellectual. For these qualities he was liked by every one, and the banker did not escape the general feeling of good will. He was as poor as his salary, and had no connections to push him after fortunes, and so, like most English clerks, he would rise to one hundred and twenty pounds a year, go on for eight years at ten pounds a year rise, and marry when he gets two hundred pounds a year, henceforth to vegetate and find that the additional ten pounds a year rise only kept pace with the additional babes in the household.

The banker, on Sunday afternoon, when no one was expected, would occasionally ask the young man to visit his young family at his suburban villa; as the conversation of the young man was so correct and clever, it could not but be of advantage to his children. This was a mistake, evidently, but it was a good natured error, and we can only wish, all of us, that there were more committed. I have not mentioned that the young man had a beautiful daughter of nineteen, but that may always be understood in any English family that has known wedded life long enough. But there were, of course, no attentions on the part of the young man other than extremely delicate, reserved and proper. This will most always be the case with English youth, as Americans well know. Don't "hem" after this. The youth, in spite of two or three days' invitation to the banker's country seat, to breathe fresh air and clear his lungs of London smoke, was evidently very ill, and though he declared himself well and robust, the banker shook his head.

"I cannot make out what is the matter with my young clerk," said the banker to a confrere who was in his back office with him, after the youth had just brought in some papers.

"Well, you are green, I should say, for a man of your time of life and experience," said banker number two. "Don't you see what's the matter? he's in love?"

"In love! bah. He is modesty and propriety itself."

"I tell you it is a fact, and with a rich old fellow's daughter who would no more think of having him for a son-in-law than you would, yourself."

"Oh, the haughty old fool; my clerk is as good as his daughter, and be hanged to him. Thank you for the hint."

As soon as banker number two had gone, the clerk was called in.

"So sir; you are in love, and pining away for the object of your affection—that's the secret, is it? Why did you not tell me before, sir?"

The youth was silent.

"Well, my boy, I pity you, but I will give you a word of advice. If the daughter is fair, she is worth making a risk for. Look here; there are £500 and two month's of leave of absence. Run away with the girl. Bah, don't look so stupid. I did the same before you, and it didn't hurt me."

The clerk fell on his marrow bones, and was upon the point of making a clean breast of it, when the old man rose and left precipitately, to avoid a scene. The young man considered and acted, and the consequence was that the next day week there was no young daughter at the dinner table of the banker at the country house. The house was in consternation, and a search made for her in all directions. A note, however, was found on her dressing table, conveying the customary prayer of forgiveness, and one enclosed from the young clerk stating that believing the banker had meant to give him a hint in regard to his daughter, and was not able to give his public consent owing to appearances, he had acted on the suggestion, and that ere his "father-in-law" had received the letter he would be his son-in-law. This pill was a bitter one, and the joke a terrible one against him; so it was hushed up and has only got to the ears of the purveyors of scandal and to your correspondent, who records it as a trait of London life.

☞"What are you sitting that child on that quarto dictionary for?" said Mrs. D., as the pater arranged his little boy at the breakfast table. "I am," replied he, "fixing the basis of a sound English education." "Yes," said she "but you are beginning at the wrong end."

Nothing ever can justify ingratitude.

Manufacture of Matches.

In one match factory in Western New York, 720,000 feet of pine wood, of the best quality, is annually cut up into matches, and 400,000 feet of bass-wood for cases. 400 barrels of sulphur and 9,000 pounds of phosphorous are annually used. 500 pounds of paper per day are used to make the light small boxes, for holding the matches, and four tons of paste-board per week for the larger boxes. Sixty-six pounds of flour per day are used for paste, and the penny stamps of internal revenue amount to the sum of $1,440 per day. 300 hands are employed at the works which are run night and day.

There are four machines in use for cutting, dipping and delivering matches.

The two-inch pine plank is sawed up the length of the match. These go into the machine for cutting, when at every stroke twelve matches are cut, and, by the succeeding stroke, pushed into slats, arranged on a double chain 250 feet long, which carries them to the sulphur vat and from thence to the phosphorus vat, and thus across the chain and back, returning them at a point just in front of the cutting machine, and where they are delivered in their natural order, and are gathered up by the boy into trays and sent to the packing room. Thus 1000 gross, or 144,000 small boxes of matches are made per day. The machines making the small, thin paper boxes, and their covers, are quite as wonderful and ingeniously contrived as those that make the matches. A long roll of paper; as wide as the box is long, revolves on a wheel, one end being in the machine. It first passes through rollers, where the printing is done; from thence to the paste boxes, where the sides and ends only are pasted; from thence to the folding apparatus, where the ends are nicely folded, and the whole box is pasted together and drops into a basket. A similar machine is at work at the covers, and thus 144,000 boxes per day are manufactured.

CURIOSITIES OF WATER.—Water exists around us to an extent and under conditions which escape the notice of cursory observers. When the dyer buys of the dry salter, one hundred pounds each of alum, carbonate of soda, and soap, he obtains in exchange for his money no less than forty-five pounds of water in the first lot, sixty-four in the second, and a valuable quantity, some times amounting to seventy-three and a half pounds, in the third. Even the transparent air we breathe contains, in ordinary weather, about five grains of water diffused through each cubic foot of its bulk, and this rarified water no more wets the air than the solidified water wets the lime or opal in which it is absorbed. Of a plaster of Paris statute weighing five pounds, more than one good pound is solidified water. Even the precious opal is but a mass of flint and water, combined in the proportion of nine grains of the earthly ingredient to one of the fluid. Of an acre of clay land to a foot deep, weighing about one thousand two hundred tons, at least four hundred tons are water; and even of the great mountain chains with which the globe is ribbed, many millions of tons are water soldified into earth.

SAFETY FROM THUNDER STORMS.—The safest situation during a thunder storm is the basement; for when a person is below the surface of the earth, the lightning must strike it before it can reach him, and will, in all probability be expended in it. Dr. Franklin advised persons apprehensive of lightning to sit in the middle of a room, not under a metal lustre, or any conductor, and to lay their feet upon another chair. It will be safer, he said, to lay two or three beds or mattresses in the middle of the room, and folding them double, to place chairs upon them. Persons in the field prefer open parts to the vicinity of trees, etc. The distance of a thunder storm, and consequently the danger, is easily estimated. As light travels at the rate of 192,000 miles in a second, its effects may be considered instantaneous within any moderate distance. Sound, on the contrary, is transmitted only at the rate of 1,142 feet, or about 380 yards in a second. By accurately observing, therefore, the time that intervenes between the flash and the noise of thunder which follows it, a very near calculation may be made of its distance, and there is no better means of removing apprehensions.

The Result in the County.

The whole Republican county ticket is elected. Some of the candidates have a less vote than others, but sufficiently large to secure their election. We tried to defeat some of them, but we failed—in this we were no more unfortunate than were some Republicans last year. We were defeated in an open fight, and we surrender and accept good naturedly the results of the contest.

Mr. Morrel for Congress was beaten in Cambria by but a few hundred, where Johnston should have at least 1400 majority. It must be remembered that Mr. Morrel has upward of two thousand men in his employ. He will no doubt make a good member. Wharton and Brown are also both elected—the official returns will show by what majorities. The candidates we supported made a very respectable run in this county as their votes will show. Indeed we could not look for a larger vote for them, with a strong organization and hard work against them. The United States Senator question saved at least one of the successful members from defeat.

Flat-Footed.

Hon. Wm. D. Kelly, re-elected to Congress from Philadelphia, in a speech at the Union League building in that city on the night of the election said:

"You are engaged in a contest for the extension of suffrage to all.

Gen. Geary in a speech at Harrisburg on the same evening said:

"The victory establishes the fact that when our forefathers declared man capable of self government they rejected the heresy of human slavery and pledged equal political rights to all their successors. That hereafter the citizens represented in this State and National Legislatures must be clothed with the rights of citizens."

Our readers can make their own comments on the above.

☞Peace can only be secured permanently to the people and the whole country by a daily and hourly exercise of the true spirit of peace and good will by all in authority as well as the masses represented. The Congressman, instead of advising persecution, should advise harmony, for he should not forget that every man, no matter how wrong he may be, will have friends and the more he is persecuted the stronger they become. If Radical Congressmen such as Stevens, Sumner, Kelly and others, attempt to carry out their threats, they will find the President prepared to resist them to the bitter end—then will commence what every good man should strive to avoid.

What Next?

The Republican party has triumphed in all the States in which elections were held last week. The present Congress is largely Republican—the next will be by a still larger majority. What next? Will the extreme Radicals, Stevens, Sumner, Kelly & Co., control the actions of Congress, or will the less Radical members who are in the majority act so as to meet the expectations of the large majority of voters who favored their election? We hope for peace and harmony.

☞It was reported last week that President Johnson had communicated some questions to Attorney General Stanberry, in regard to the Constitutionality of the present Congress, and whether he should transmit his next message to it or not. The report was found to be a "hoax," gotten up for speculating purposes. The people can have no fears about the President. He is right and he will make himself appear right yet, notwithstanding the abuse heaped upon him.

☞If Gen. Geary should think kindly of an old and fast friend wouldn't there be howling in a certain quarter. We will have no objections.

Another Civil War.

Scarcely have we emerged from a war of four bloody years duration until we hear threats of another to surpass it in magnitude and terror. Leading men on both sides of the two extreme parties agitate the question, and every day but increases the virulence. Patriotic men discountenance the extreme opinions of Stevens, Sumner, Forney, Kelley and others, who make universal negro suffrage the sole basis of Southern representation, while others discountenance the extreme notions which would have the President to disclaim and refuse to recognize a duly elected Northern Congress. To the Radical notions of the former the Conservative party is opposed, and also to the extreme and revolutionary notions of the latter. The people can only look to the course of the President. He must hold his position between those two extremes, or else he is lost. Should he assist the leading Radicals in their scheme to abolish the rights of the States, he will lose the confidence of those who have heretofore supported him; and should he accord to the opinions of those who would actuate him to disclaim the duly elected Northern members, he would only excite the people's animosity, still further. There is but one course left for President Johnson, and that is the medium course between the two extremes. We are not one of those who consider the results of the elections an endorsement of the leading Radicals in Congress. Their ideas are as much scouted as those of the opposition extremists who would make the Northern Congress an illegal one.

We do not believe that President Johnson will not recognize the Northern Congress. He must have as much faith in the people of the North and their representatives as he may have in the people of the South and their representatives. We believe that the mass of the Representatives just elected to Congress are as loyal as ever, and we can repose confidence in them. tives to take either extreme, but to hold on to the conciliatory medium. The majority of those recently elected have been elected on the strength of the Constitutional amendments, which they have been made to believe are the conditions of reconstruction. We believe that when they assemble they will commit themselves to that policy, which the last Congress did not do, and if there is anything objectionable they will have it modified, or if anything misunderstood they will have it explained. Our people do not want negro suffrage made the condition, and their representatives so understand it, and if the proposed amendments do not enforce it then they will make them the condition. We take it as settled, that some of the conditions of those amendments will have to be adopted by the South before they can be admitted, and we are under the impression that President Johnson will so take the voice of the people.

We repeat that the only way to avoid another civil war is to hold on to the medium policy, which will be in the Constitutional Amendments if they are so modified or explained as to avoid Radical misconstruction.

☞What's the matter now, "Dad" Lewis? Huntingdon 1200 majority for Geary! Please send all the surplus drapery you have on hand over to one B. Lutz, editor of the Aughwick Valley Herald.

Query.—If two quasi Republican papers going over to Clymer in one county can increase the Republican majority from 900 to 1200, how much would they have injured the same cause by remaining.—Bedford Inquirer.

Not so fast, "son." Please don't magnify, or else we'll think the recent successes to your cause have engendered a slight bewilderment in your upper story, attributable to more causes than one. Huntingdon stands at 900, but we will concede your figures are what might have been if our people didn't know who Thad Stevens is, and we had remained on the side he represents. "That's what's the matter."

Problem for the Inquirer.—If 900 plus 300 cyphers makes 1200, according to the Inquirer man's imaginary calculation, how does it come 1200 minus the actual 300, only makes 900, according to arithmetic?

The Elections and the South.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Friday, Oct. 12.

The Charleston Daily News, of this morning, concludes an editorial upon the recent elections in the North with the following words:

"Disagreeable as the prospect may be, we are forced to conclude that without any power in us to control the tide of events, we are drifting slowly back into the Union on the basis of the Constitutional Amendment, and that we will only cease to occupy our present anomalous position when we are represented into Congress by men who can take the test oath, and when our State offices are filled by men who have never violated an express oath of allegiance to the United States."

☞The election is over, and the Republicans have a large majority in the Legislature. Who will be elected United States Senator? That is now the important question. As we helped to instruct the successful candidate in this county for Curtin we shall feel some interest in his success.

☞The Hollidaysburg Whig already nominates Mr. Morrel for Governor, after Gen. Geary gets through. That's slightly previous.

OUR POSITION.

As we do not intend to print a strictly partisan paper, we shall frequently give for the information of our readers, leading editorials from the most prominent Conservative papers. The teachings of violent partisan papers will not have the influence desired by the truly loyal and good men of the country, therefore we shall avoid as far as possible feeding the mind with anything calculated to keep alive a spirit injurious to the peace, harmony and best interests of our whole people.

We give below an editorial from the New York Times, edited by Henry J. Raymond, the author of the platform address of the Philadelphia National Union Convention, and while we do not endorse every assertion in the article, we freely admit it contains more truth than poetry:

THE STATE ELECTIONS.

The results of the late elections show very clearly that the contest has been almost precisely as it was two years ago, between the Democratic and Union Parties. The differences between Congress and the President have had no perceptible influence upon the party divisions of the past four or five years. Nor has the Philadelphia Convention, strong as was the impression which it made at the outset upon the public mind, produced any marked effect upon political organizations in the several States where elections have been held. On the one side is the old Democratic vote,—increased or diminished somewhat here and there by local influences, and on the other is the Union majority, stronger on the whole than ever before, and not at all affected either by the strong appeals made to its judgment and reason, or by the influence and patronage of the General Government brought to bear upon it. It is undoubtedly true that the whole power of the Administration has been thrown against the Republican party; yet that power, great as it always is, has been able to effect absolutely nothing in the general result. The reason of this is found in the fact that it has been thrown in favor of the Democratic party, as organized and directed during the war. It has not been used with primary regard to the principles and policy of the Administration itself.

The Philadelphia Convention set forth what we believe to be the Administration platform on the subject of Restoration; but that platform was not made the basis of political action by the Administration itself or anybody else. It was simply surrendered to the Democratic Party as a stepping-stone to power. The leaders of that party seized upon it for that use. Their subsequent action proved conclusively that their motives in accepting and indorsing it were partisan—that they sought, not so much the restoration of the Union as the reorganization and reinstatement of their own party. The Philadelphia Convention gave the country a basis of restoration upon the principles settled by the war—and to this the South gave its unanimous, sincere and cordial assent. If the Democrats of the North had accepted it with the same sincere desire for the public good it would have been indorsed and reaffirmed by the people. But they did nothing of the sort. They took it as part of their own stock in trade. They seized it as the ladder upon which they were to climb back again into the high places from which they had been expelled. Designed as a great national movement, for the attainment of national ends, it became, in their hands, a tool for the attainment of a partisan purpose—for the resumption of official place and party power. Unfortunately the friends of the Administration lent themselves to the project. Democratic Committees and Democratic candidates repaired to Washington and demanded of the Administration the aid of its patronage and its influence for their party purposes,—and it was very largely accorded to them. Democrats of Copperhead antecedents were appointed to office,—not universally, perhaps often through inadvertence and lack of information,—but upon the application of Democratic leaders, far more anxious to restore their party to power than to serve the Administration or save the Union. The same men, acting from the same motives, secured Democratic nominations, for State offices and for Congress, wherever they had chances of success, and the whole current of political action ran in the same direction.

The natural effect of all this was to produce upon the public mind the conviction that the aim of the Administration was to restore the Democratic Party to power; and as this conviction grew the political power of the Administration dwindled until it absolutely ceased, as the result shows, to have any perceptible influence upon the elections whatever.

There is one thing upon which the people have made up their minds, and neither the President nor any other power can change it, and that is that the restoration of the Union shall not be intrusted to the men who tried to destroy it by war, nor to those who failed to resist that attempt by all the means in their power. This determination may not be logical, nor constitutional, nor strictly in accordance with the rights of States and sections; but it is instinctive and unconquerable. Once let it be distinctly understood that the Democratic Party is not to be restored to its old ascendency and the people will be liberal, just and generous in their adjustment of all political differences; but so long as that point is left in doubt, they will be exacting and intolerant upon all. The late elections show that they intend to have guarantees upon that point first; and nothing is likely to be gained, in any quarter or by any party, by resisting and defying their will.

Gen. Butler's Programme--Impeachment of the President.

Gen. Butler is bidding high for the post of generalissimo to the devastating movement which the prophetic Brownlow has foretold. It is quite plain that the commander of the Massachusetts militia is not entirely satisfied with his own military record.—He yearns for an opportunity of proving that Gen. Grant underrates his capacity as a strategist, and that the public undervalue his courage and devotion as a soldier. Next time he intends to be master, not subordinate.—He intends to have the direction of affairs—not to be subject to others' direction. Hence he has taken time by the forelock, and is employing himself energetically in fomenting the trouble which he proposes to quell with the torch and the sword. He sees no chance of obtaining laurels save in another civil war, and he is laboring wildly, recklessly, with an utter indifference to principle, and at no pecuniary sacrifice, to render that calamity inevitable.

As a mere agitator it must be confessed that Gen. Butler is head and shoulders above the mediocre host of talkers who are doing the work of the extremists throughout the country.—Brownlow has Butler's malignity, but not a tithe of his power. Even Thaddeus Stevens and Wendell Phillips are distanced in the struggle by the General from Massachusetts. These men predict a renewal of strife; he urges it, declares it desirable, and pledges himself when it shall come, to sweep all opponents "from the face of the earth as a cobweb is swept away before the rising of the morning sun." They insist that in certain contingencies Congress may rid itself of Executive opposition by impeachment; he swears that Andrew Johnson shall be impeached, and has actually drafted the indictment upon which the President is to be tried, convicted, and deposed. Thus, Butler is far ahead of all competitors in the race towards a new revolution. His boldness might command admiration could we but forget his military history. His programme might be accepted as synonymous with victory, if it were not remembered that his generalship has invariably led to disaster and defeat.

But Butler says the President shall be impeached! Well, what are the grounds of impeachment, as stated by the prosecuting General in his Cincinnati speech? Let the counts be stated in their order: (1.) Attempts "to bring Congress into public hatred, ridicule and contempt." (2.) Corrupt use of "the power of removal and appointments." (3.) Neglect to execute laws passed over his veto. (4.) Appointment of officers after the Senate had refused to confirm them (5.) Corrupt use of the pardoning power. (6.) Terminating the war by proclamation instead of treaty. Now it is manifest that with the single exception of the last of the allegations we have enumerated, there is not one which a partisan opposition has not at any time in the last half century been ready to bring against the Executive of the day. If these are to be pretexts for impeaching a President—if the gravest proceeding known to the Constitution may be undertaken on the hearsay charges of partisan enemies—what President might not have been tried and deposed? The charges themselves are identical with charges which have been preferred and reiterated in every political campaign of which we have remembrance; but until Gen. Butler dedicated himself to sensational oratory and an heroic ambition, who ever dreamed of pushing vulgar clamor and partisan hate to the point of impeachment? Why, at this rate, any President might be got rid of by impeachment, if Congress were controlled by his opponents. In these days of angry political warfare, not the purest or wisest or most discreet of Presidents could escape accusations of neglect, corruption and misuse of power; and if Congress, being opposed to him, chose to arraign him before "the Court of Impeachment of the United States," he might be summarily deprived of office and power. Nay, without being formally convicted—simply by arraigning him and then postponing trial—a partisan majority might shake off a troublesome Executive; for, according to Gen. Butler, from the moment the act of impeachment commences, the person impeached "ceases to be able to exercise the duties of that office until he is acquitted." And acquitted we may be sure he never would be, if such charges as those which Butler recites justifies the deposition which he declares is in store for President Johnson.

The Butler programme goes yet further. It provides for the Impeachment of the President; but it also presupposes resistance, and provides for maintaining the authority of Congress by force of arms. This is the contingency upon which the hero of the Dutch Gap rests his most cherished aspirations. Impeachment, as he designs it, will be valuable chiefly as the beginning of an armed struggle for the mastery, for out of the contest he hopes to emerge Military Dictator! That is what Gen. Butler aims at. His ambition suggests a short cut to the Presidency. To reach that he is prepared to precipitate the country into revolution, and to inaugurate an era of horrors, that the rights of States may be destroyed, and red-capped Radicalism reign lord of all.

Extravagant as these plans are, no thoughtful man can witness their promulgation and advocacy without anxiety. They are indicative of evil, and evil only. They are illustrative of the dangerous stage which our national politics has reached—a stage in which bloodshed, anarchy are foreshadowed as means necessary to advancement, and the popular mind is familiarized with principles and measures utterly at variance with the constitutional order and liberty which have been the American's proudest boast. The error—might we not say the crime?—is not confined to Gen. Butler and those who think and work with him. There are two schools of extremists in the land, and the menaces of one provoke the threats and intensify the bitterness of the other. The violence that would solve the difficulty between the Executive and Congress by the impeachment of the former, has its counterpart in the recklessness which assails the authority of Congress, and proposes to secure to the South admission at the point of the bayonet. Both are foolish; both are wicked; both are fraught with peril to the peace of the country. They who counsel the President to treat the law-making power as a "Rump Congress," to put down by force a body which he has officially recognized, and to disregard as illegal a body, whose rights are at least as valid as his own—counsel him to suicide. On the other hand, they who contend that the President should be impeached because, as partisans, they oppose his policy, distrust his integrity, and chafe under his exercise of power, would destroy the guarantees of constitutional liberty, and invest a partisan majority in Congress with a power that would be fatal to our form of government. The ultraism does not essentially differ in the two cases. It takes opposite directions, but in both instances its tendency is toward bloodshed and anarchy. Only the good sense and moderation of the country can avert the calamities with which both forms of violence are pregnant.

FEARFUL TRAGEDY.—A tragic scene occurred at Vienna recently, at the canal of the Danube, near the Aspern Bridge. A woman, modestly dressed, threw herself from the quay into the water. A man, who at the same moment was bathing his Newfoundland dog in the channel, threw a stone in the direction where the woman had just disappeared. Meanwhile, the latter, owing to the inflation of her clothing, rose several times to the top of the water. The dog caught her while she thus floated and tried to bring her to shore; but she was determined to destroy her life, and she dragged the dog down with her. Among the crowd, which was horror stricken at the sight of this terrible struggle between life and death, was a soldier of the police, who courageously plunged into the water to the help of the unhappy woman. Scarcely had he seized her than he was likewise carried away by her to the bottom of the water, and in a few seconds the woman, the soldier and the dog had disappeared in the canal, never to rise again.

The Trial of Jeff. Davis.

A correspondent of the Boston Daily Advertiser, who signs himself a "Radical," objects to submitting the question of Davis' guilt to the decision of a Court and Jury. He says.

"To my mind the sovereign and victorious majority of the people of the United States are superior to the courts they have created to serve the ordinary administration of justice. I can therefore see no dignity nor sense in having Jeff. Davis tried by a court, when the people themselves, in a four years' session of overwhelming majesty, have already tried him and have unanimously found him guilty. In the very act of resisting him by force and arms they judged a traitor, deserving death. To try him now in a peace court is to admit a doubt of their own rectitude in the war. The only question which national self respect appears to me to admit is, what shall be done with the traitor's forfeited life? Shall it be cut off ignominiously, or be allowed to reach its natural term in disfranchisement and disgrace?"

These suggestions are not without force, though we do not think them wholly just. We do not see that any doubt as to the necessity and justice of war for the suppression of rebellion is necessarily implied by trying the leader of that rebellion for treason.

But it is perfectly fair to look to the probable result and effect of a trial before deciding upon subjecting him to that process. If he could be arraigned on charge of treason, convicted by a jury, under the charge of a dignified Court, and sentenced to the punishment prescribed by law, something would doubtless have been done to vindicate the law by judicial process, and to "make treason odious." The principle would also be established that an attempt to secede from the Union, supported by arms, is treason, and thus the right of secession claimed by Southern States would be judicially overthrown.

On the other hand it must be borne in mind that his conviction before a jury cannot be deemed absolutely certain—and the chances of failure, both demand consideration. There are two classes of persons who do not believe Davis guilty of treason; (1) the extreme Radicals who hold with Thad Stevens that he established a de facto government which we overthrew by war, and that he is therefore, only a prisoner of war and not amenable to our Courts as a traitor, and (2) the theoretical secessionists who hold that acts done against the Government under State authority cannot be punished as crimes. It is certainly possible that one or more, out of both these classes, might happen to be upon the Jury, as it is not quite easy to see how they could be excluded without betraying a very palpable purpose to pack the Jury. And in that event Davis would very probably be acquitted, or not convicted, of treason.

What would be the effect of such a result? Would there not be some show of reason for claiming that secession was not treason? Would not the Southern doctrine of secession seem to have received thereby a quasi sanction? It is not easy to see how the decision of the tribunal, which, after four years' trial of war, has delivered its august verdict on the attempt of the South to secede, and enforced it upon all concerned, can be made more impressive or imposing by the confirming verdict of a Jury. But it is very easy to see that something may be done to detract from its solemnity, by such an adverse result as is certainly within the limits of possibility.—Times.

Brief Items.

—Darkness reigned supreme on Friday and Saturday night last, in consequence of the gas refusing to burn. The pipes got full of water.

—The return judges met here on Friday last, and submitted the election returns. All the judges were in but Tell's who was detained by high water, or some other cause. We give the official vote of the county in another place.

—The Blair County Fair was held a week before last, and was a grand success. This was the first fair held there since '61.

—As we have again got into the "old harness," we hope our friends throughout the country will not forget us, but will assist us in getting up a good local paper. Send us the items.

—There were fairs in Perry, Juniata, Mifflin and Centre counties last week. Judging by the weather we do not think there was great success.

—The Episcopal Church of this place is undergoing repairs. A neat wooden fence has been built around the yard.

Dobbins' Electric Soap.

Vote of Tell Township.

The following is the official vote of Tell township, which was received after the Judges had adjourned, and has not yet been counted in:

Clymer 129, Geary 39; Steel 130 Clarkson 36; Johnston 126; Morrell 42; Miller 131, Willis 126. Wharton 37, Brown 42; Sipe 126, Lovell 42; Greenland 126; Simpson 42; Dearmitt, 126, Smucker 42; Gorsuch 126, Fouse 42; Alexander 126, Harmon 42; Funk 126, Mark 42.

Freshet.

The waters of the Juniata at this place rose very high last week in consequence of the equinoctial rains. Not much damage was done here further than is usual in such events, such as the destruction of fences and sweeping away pumpkins, etc. The rain commenced to fall here on Tuesday evening and continued with little intermission until Friday.

Ho! For Salt River.

We hear that the steam is up for those who are obliged to go up Salt River this season. Many of our citizens are good-naturedly complaining of their annual fate, and are anxiously expecting free passports over the well known route. As we have not yet received a "free pass" we take it for granted that there is a desire with the people that we shall remain at our post. Whether it is their desire or not, we have come to the positive conclusion to "stand fast and fear not," and wait patiently for future developments.

Literary Society.

Some of our young men for a while past have been talking of starting a literary society in this place, when on Saturday evening last they took the iniatory step to carry the project into practical effect, by meeting for the purpose of organization. A committee was appointed to draft a Constitution, which will be submitted sometime this week, when the society will be permanently (at least we hope so) organized. There are now a goodly number of young men in the borough who will join this worthy enterprise, and desire the well known advantages from it which will be for their future welfare. This is a propitious time for the organization of such a society, and we wish it all the success it justly deserves. We may be able to give its name in next issue.

UNPARALLELED SUCCESS!

Orders have already been received for upwards of 300,000 Volumes of the AMERICAN CONFLICT!

HORACE GREELEY'S HISTORY OF THE GREAT REBELLION, AND THE WEEKLY ORDERS NOW AVERAGE 2,000 VOLUMES!

W. L. HARVEY, Agent, is happy to announce that this truly national work is now completed, and that he will be in Huntingdon county the second, third and fourth weeks in October, 1866, to supply it to his subscribers.—He will also take orders for and furnish the entire work to all who make early application.

Mr. Greeley's History of the Rebellion, is everywhere recognized by fair minded men of all parties, not only as the highest authority, but greatly surpassing all other works, both in conception of plan and excellence of detail, abounding in clear and graphic delineations of events, candid and accurate statements of facts, and marked throughout by the most thorough and painstaking research. It has been subjected to the most searching criticisms by the press of all political parties and religious denominations, and in not less than one thousand notices and reviews, by the most able journals, not only in this country, but also in Europe, its great superiority over all other works of the kind is most emphatically attested, even by the author's most determined political opponents. This work contains an account of all the battles, raids, skirmishes, &c., while there were fifty important battles, an account of which does not appear in Headley's or Abbott's, so-called histories of the war.

"It would be difficult to place too high an estimate on the service Mr. Greeley has rendered our country, by the preparation of this volume. I await the forthcoming of the 2d volume with eager expectation.—W. D. KELLEY, M.C.

"It bears the works of labor, studied candor and accuracy.—WM. H. SEWARD.

"Its accuracy gives it a value beyond any other history of that eventful period. The great industry and impartiality of Mr. Greeley will make this the best of all future histories of the great rebellion.—THADDEUS STEVENS, M.C.

The Cincinnati Enquirer, a Democratic paper says of Greeley's History—"It contains a vast amount of information and is altogether superior to any volume on the subject that has yet appeared."

From the (London) Westminster Review:—"It is temperate and gives way to no vituperation, although thoroughly in earnest, and if we may admire the industry which has enabled the editor of the leading newspaper in America to do this at such a time, we may still more admire the spirit of fairness and directness which characterize this very valuable work."

$100 ADDITIONAL BOUNTY!!

NEW BOUNTY LAW PASSED!

Attention, Discharged Soldiers!

The Act of Congress approved July 28, 1866, gives $100 additional bounty to all soldiers who enlisted for three years and were discharged by reason of expiration of service, or who were discharged for wounds received in battle and who have not received more than $100 bounty for such service. An additional bounty of $100 is also allowed to the nearest relative of soldiers who enlisted for a term of three years and who died or were killed in the service, to be paid in the following order: First, to the widow; second, to the children; third, to the father, and fourth, to the mother.

Soldiers' Widows.

By applying to W. H. Woods, of Huntingdon, Huntingdon county, Pa., you can have your pensions increased two dollars a month for each and every child you have, and when the widow has married or died, the children are entitled to the increase.

To all who have brought home the bodies of their friends who died or were killed in the service of the United States, there is a certain amount of compensation allowed you for the expenses incurred in bringing home the bodies of your friends, which you can obtain by making application to me.

Invalid Soldiers, Attention!

The act of Congress, approved June 6, 1866, gives additional pensions to the following class of persons:

Soldiers who have lost both eyes or both hands, $25 per month; who have lost both feet $20 per month; who have lost one hand or one foot, or totally disabled in the same, $15 per month.

Persons who have been deprived of their pensions in consequence of being in the civil service of the United States Government, can be restored to the pension roll by applying to me.

Fathers and mothers who were in whole or in part dependent upon their sons for support are entitled to a pension. Also brothers and sisters under sixteen years of age

All discharged soldiers who did not receive transportation to their places of enlistment when discharged, are entitled to receive it; and also all who were held as prisoners of war, and did not receive commutation of rations when released or discharged, are entitled to it.

Officers who were in the service on the 1st of March, 1865, and were discharged after the 9th of April, 1865, by applying to me can receive three months extra pay.

Soldiers of 1812!

All soldiers, or soldiers' widows, of the war of 1812, who have served two months, or been wounded or disabled in such service, if in necessitous circumstances, are entitled to an annuity of $96.

Local Bounty.

All veteran soldiers who gave their credit to districts in the State of Pennsylvania, and who received no local bounty, are entitled to receive three hundred dollars.

All persons having any of the above mentioned claims, or any other kind of claim against the United States or State Governments, will please address me, giving full particulars, enclosing a stamp for return postage, and they will receive a prompt reply.

Authorized Army and Navy War-Claim Agent.

Where he offers at Wholesale and Retail an immense stock and endless variety of

FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC

HARDWARE, CUTLERY, Paints, Oils, Glass, &c

AT REDUCED PRICES.

TEN YEARS diligent attention to business in the Hardware trade in this place, has given me an experience that enables me to secure great advantages for my customers in the selection of the best standard brands and reliable qualities of goods.

Having just returned from New York and Philadelphia with a splendid stock, bought since the recent decline in gold, I am now offering great inducements to buyers.

Among my stock may be found

WHAT EVERYBODY WANTS.

Carpenters, Blacksmiths, Gunsmiths, Shoemakers, Saddlers, Painters, Coachmakers, Cabinet Makers, Machinists, Foundrymen, And for all other kinds of Mechanics.

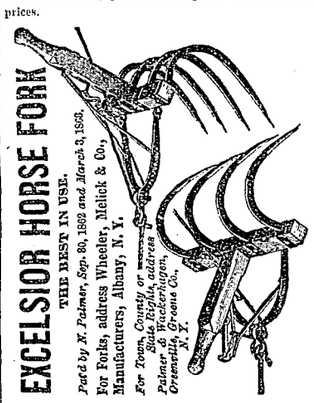
Every farmer should see the famous

HARPOON HAY FORK!

It is the wonder of the age; and one trial convinces the most skeptical that it is the best Hay Fork made.—I have the agency for the sale of these forks for Huntingdon and parts of Bedford and Fulton counties and can fill orders for Forks, pullies and ropes at manufacturers prices.



I have also the celebrated

PALMER HORSE FORKS

Which have given such good satisfaction for the last 3 years, and which I am now selling at greatly reduced prices.

Cheap

WOODEN PUMPS!

The merit of these pumps is shown by the fact that the demand for them is rapidly increasing everywhere. There is no iron in them to corrode and injure the water. They are light and convenient, so that every man can put in his own pump, the whole only costing him about one half the price of other pumps. Pumps, and wooden pipe to suit them, promptly shipped by railroad on receipt of orders. Give depth from floor to bottom of well.

Thankful for the patronage I have hitherto received I shall continue my endeavors to suit, accommodate and please all, and respectfully solicit a liberal share of public patronage.

JAMES A. BROWN.

STAR MAGIC LINIMENT.

$1000 REWARD will be paid for any medicine that excels this for the following diseases:

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Spinal Affections, Contracted Joints, Cholic Pains, Pains in Side or Back, Toothache, Headache, Sprains, Sore Throat, Cuts, Bruises, Burns, and all Diseases of the Muscles, Skin and Glands.

This is an Internal and External Medicine, composed of Roots, Herbs and Barks such as our forefathers used.—There is a bountiful supply on the earth to cure all complaints, if we only knew what they were. This has been a subject for constant study with the Medical Faculty for a great many years, to find out the kinds best adapted to the above complaints—how to put them together, and what portions to use.

This wonderful remedy needs no recommendation save the results which invariably follow its application.

☞ This popular remedy is fast coming into use from the fact that it gives good satisfaction.

☞ PHYSICIANS are invited to test its efficacy in all cases of Rheumatism, Affections of the Spinal Column, and all Diseases of the Skin, Muscles and Glands. It has been used in thousands of instances under the personal supervision of the Inventors, and has never disappointed their expectations. All we ask for it is a trial—experimental proof—not the testimony of the men of straw, are the vouchers we desire to present to the public.

It would be well for many now lying in beds of torture, if these facts could reach their sick chambers. It is more important to them than to the inventors that this should be the case. "Truth is mighty and must prevail."

☞ Keep it in your family, for sickness comes when you least expect it.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE PICTORIAL BOOK OF

Anecdotes & Incidents of the Rebellion.

Heroic, Patriotic, Romantic, Humorous and Tragical.

There is a certain portion of the war that will never go into the regular histories, nor be embodied in romance or poetry, which is a very real part of it, and will, if preserved, convey to succeeding generations a better idea of the spirit of the conflict than many dry reports or carefull narratives of events, and this part may be called the gossip, the fun, the pathos, of the war.

These illustrate the character of the leaders, the humor of the soldiers, the devotion of women, the bravery of men, the pluck of our heroes, the romance and hardships of the service. From the beginning of the war the author has been engaged in collecting all the anecdotes connected with or illustrative of it, and has grouped and classified them under appropriate heads, and in a very attractive form.

The volume is profusely illustrated with over 300 engravings by the first artists, which are really beautiful; worthy of examination as specimens of the art. Many of them are set into the body of the text, after the popular style of Lossing's Pictorial Field Book of the Revolution. The book's contents include reminiscences of camp, picket, spy, bivouac, siege and battle-field adventures; thrilling feats of bravery, wit, drollery, comical and ludicrous adventures; etc., etc.

Amusement as well as instruction may be found in every page, as graphic detail, brilliant wit, and authentic history, are skillfully interwoven in this work of literary art.

This work sells itself. The people are tired of dry details and partisan works, and want something humorous, romantic and startling. Our agents are making from $100 to $200 per month, clear of all expenses. Send for circulars, giving full particulars, and see our terms and proof of the above assertion.
